Corporate Style at an affordable price

We know that when you choose to commission a photographer you want images that will reflect your company, products and people in a very personal way and, like any other spending, this should be seen as an important investment.

Just think about the number of possible applications your customized pictures might have and how you might get the most out of them You will use them for your website; your Corporate Brochure; some good PR; posters; direct mailing; that Newsletter; that Exhibition and many other uses!

Coming Soon...

New Library projects planned for October include "Delivery Man" and "Caring for the elderly". Monty's recent client commissions have seen the conclusion of a large project for Romec, and new projects for Natural England and Lu Lin Estate China Teas.

With our help, guidance and some careful planning, you can have a fantastic library of pictures that can be used for a wide variety of purposes. Good images last longer and do not date so quickly. They also have impact and can help establish a style which places your business apart from the competition.

Inspiring Corporate Portraiture

Taking photographs of people – The Board of Directors; the staff or your team, is often a challenging task. How do you make them appear relaxed and natural, calm and less self-conscious and project the message behind your company?

I have shot a lot of portraiture over many years for Annual Reports, Corporate Brochures and Websites. I am used to making people feel relaxed in front of the camera. Naturally my experience, as you might expect, makes my pictures of people look effortless and spontaneous. That is exactly how you would wish them to look.

This project, shot for The Audit Commission, shows these important people looking out of the page, happy, relaxed and confident. The shoot was produced and organised by Liz from our Studio - an additional service which clients find invaluable. It involved coordinating Employee's availability at their offices and outdoor locations throughout the UK and arranging everything cost-effectively. To see more click here
